South Carolina receives homeland security funding from the federal government (based on population). Grants are allocated based on statewide, regional, and local needs established by those entities and within the requirements outlined in the federally required state strategies. States are required to distribute a minimum of 80 percent of their awarded funds to local government entities. To date, approximately $68 million has been scheduled to pass through SLED to local and state entities. The State Counter Terrorism Coordinating Council is integrally involved in the process of allocation of these funds, which have been awarded pursuant to the State strategies.
